Seaford Christmas Magic and Late Night Shopping

The weather was kind to Seaford when Christmas Magic and Late Night Shopping took place on Friday 7 December. The Mayor Linda Wallraven was joined by Father Christmas outside Huckleberry Hair to switch the Christmas lights on.

Stallholders were selling food, gifts and raising funds for charities, while many of the town's shops stayed open late. Many traders dressed as elves or other festive figures and also took part in the best dressed shop window which was judged by the Mayor Linda Wallraven, and her consort and two members of the Seaford Chamber of Commerce.

The Best Dressed Shop Window competition was won by Home Hardware and the Retro Market, runner up was Foam & Fabric and highly commended were Fonetastic, Sinclair's and Willow Tree Trading.

Funfair rides, musical entertainment and the BASE Muppet band were also highlights of the evening. There was also a chance to meet Father Christmas in his grotto at Redgold Opticians.

This year we introduced a new lighting scheme, there were many compliments given in respect of the new scheme.

We would like to thank those businesses who sponsored publicity materials and helped us stage the event and also those who opened their doors late into Friday evening.

Seaford Head Golf Course Clubhouse gets approved

Work will start on a new clubhouse at Seaford Head Golf Course in early 2013, offering the town a new venue with sweeping views of the sea. Construction is expected to be complete by the end of 2013 and will make the golf course, which already boasts stunning scenery, even more attractive to visitors.

The Council approved the finance for Cheesmur Building Contractors to build the clubhouse on Tuesday November 27 at a council meeting, after four years of planning and designing the facility. The new building will cost 1,717,438, which will be funded by a 25 year loan of £1,717,000, an application for which has been made for government approval.

The Clubhouse would provide updated facilities for golfers, have a flexible space which can be used by the public and local organisations to hold a variety of events. The clubhouse will include a full catering kitchen and bar with an outside balcony, where visitors will be able to take advantage of the panoramic views of Seaford Bay. The new building will also have a green roof to blend in with the downland.

Temporary accommodation will be provided in the meantime to ensure golf club members and other golfers can continue to enjoy their sport during the construction period, when the course will remain open for business. The old clubhouse, which club president Don Mabey MBE, said was falling apart, will be demolished.

The new facility could mean the club will be able to attract businesses and societies, thus increasing revenue and ploughing the profits back into the town.
